General information on Barbados:

Situated about 320 km (200 mi) NNE of Trinidad and about 160 km (100 mi) ESE of Saint Lucia, Barbados is the most easterly of the Caribbean islands. The island is 34 km (21 mi) long and 23 km (14 mi) wide, with an area of 430 sq km (166 sq mi) and a total coastline of 97 km (60 mi). Comparatively, Barbados occupies slightly less than 2.5 times the area of Washington, DC. The capital city of Bridgetown, is located on the country's southwestern coast.

The coast is almost entirely encircled with coral reefs with the land rising to 336m (1,102 ft) at Mt. Hillaby in the parish of St. Andrew and in most other areas, the land falls in a series of terraces to a coastal strip or wide flat lane.

Security

Generally speaking, Barbados is a safe and peaceful country. Nevertheless, crime does exist so you are advised to maintain at least the same level of personal security awareness as you would anywhere else and ensure that your living accommodation is secure. Avoid walking alone in isolated areas, including beaches, particularly after dark. Do not carry large amounts of cash or jewelry. Valuables and travel documents should be left, where possible, in a hidden and safe location. There is a low threat from terrorism in Barbados. Still, you should be aware of the global risk of indiscriminate terrorist attacks which could be in public areas, including those frequented by expatriates and foreign travelers.

Local Laws and Customs (taken from the barbados.org site)

You should note that there are severe penalties for all drug offences. Pack all luggage yourself. You should be aware that it is an offence for anyone to dress in camouflage clothing in Barbados. Barbados, in common with much of the English speaking Caribbean, has a very conservative attitude to homosexuality and homophobic views are unfortunately common. Contrary to popular belief, homosexuality itself is not illegal although sodomy remains a criminal offence. However, the penalties set out in the 1992 Sexual Offences Act concerning sexual relations between members of the same sex are rarely enforced when this takes place in private. Being sexually 'tolerant' will assist in avoiding any confrontation with heterosexuals and homosexuals.

Things to do in Barbados

When time permits, there are unlimited things to do in Barbados, but here are a few top recommendations:

Atlantis Submarines (<http://atlantisadventures.com>)

Journey to a spectacular underworld 150ft below the crystal clear Caribbean sea in the most technologically advanced passenger submarine on earth, and explore fascinating marine life, colourful reefs, majestic coral gardens, and sunken ships. It's not just an experience, it's an adventure!

Oistins Fish Fry

This is a must! Get down to Oistins in the parish of Christ Church around 7pm, find a place to sit and eat locally caught and prepared fish and chips while the entertainment goes on around you. From reggae bands to ballroom music with couples dancing. Next to the beach and under the stars, a really fun evening out.

Visit the Beach

There are many lovely beaches around the island including at your hotel doorstep. Take your pick and enjoy!

Harrison's Cave (<http://harrisonscave.com>)

This magnificent, crystallised limestone cavern is said to be one of the wonders of the world. Its pure clear water and flowing streams helped to create beautiful stalactites and stalagmites which propagate the cave. You will be amazed by nature's mastery as you journey through this living cave.
